Truth and Fiction

Cottingley in Yorkshire, England. It's the summer of 1917, and two young cousins, Elsie Wright and Frances Griffiths, take a handful of photos featuring homemade fairies in their garden. Unbeknownst to them they lauched a sensation that would confuse and delight future generations to this day.

These seemingly innocent pictures were seen by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who verified them as proof of the existence of fairies, and a nation devastated by the horrors of the Great War were only too eager to jump on the bandwagon. People from all over flocked to the Cottingley garden in the hope of glimpsing the secretive beings firsthand.

In 1981 Elsie and Frances finally admitted their hoax, but right up until her death in 1986, Frances remained adamant that one of the photos was real and that they really had seen fairies in the garden.

Ana Sender

was born in Terrassa (Barcelona), Spain, in 1978. She studied fine arts and illustration at the Massana Art School in Barcelona and completed her studies at the Francesca Bonemaisson School. She draws, writes, and imagines all sorts of stories. Her works have appeared both in many books and newspapers. Ana lives near the forest. Many of her illustrations are inspired by her dreams. She likes werewolves, wild things, and green, swampy places.

Ana Sender's first book for NorthSouth pays homage to one of the most enduring hoaxes of the twentieth century.

With a rich color palette and fresh pencil technique, Ana Sender follows in the footsteps of films, television, books, and newspaper articles, telling the story of the Cottingley cousins. What makes this book unusual is that it is squarely aimed at children, telling the enduring story authentically but also offering the tantalizing possibility that fairies really do exist.

Every raccoon knows it's wrong to steal people's leftovers, but Muddy can't help himself. He loves leftovers—and he likes to eat them on plates. “Our son's a picky eater,” his parents say. When Muddy gets caught, the oldest, wisest raccoon insists he make amends. But when all twenty-seven raccoons enter the restaurant to return Muddy's stolen plates, what happens next is not what anyone expects.

Mischievous Muddy will steal your heart!

There's someone in the living room.
It is Daddy.
It is Angryman.

Boj's father can be very angry and violent. Boj calls this side of his father's personality "Angryman." When Angryman comes no one is safe. Until something powerful happens...

Gro Dahle's astute text and Svein Nyhus's bold, evocative art capture the full range of emotions that descend on a small family as they grapple with "Angryman." With an important message to children who experience the same things as Boj: You are not alone. It's not your fault. You must tell someone you trust. It doesn't have to be this way!

Welcome Each Season!

When spring comes, it melts the snow. Where will all the water go? The first harbingers of spring can be seen in the forest—as the wet snow begins to melt. The little squirrels Mick, Mack, and Molly can't believe that snow can turn into water. That is, until they discover a floating tree and use it as a raft.

This gentle adventure, told in rhyme, is a wonderful celebration of nature and friendship.

A beloved story, now available in English, from Japanese master of children's book illustration Kazuo Iwamura, beautifully rhymed by acclaimed author David Henry Wilson.

Kazuo Iwamura

"engages young children with his lovely illustrations and charming characters," said Through the Looking Glass in a review of Hooray for Fall! Kazuo Iwamura studied at the Tokyo National University of Fine Arts and Music, and started his career as an illustrator for children's television programs. A Spring-y Story

Classic Bernadette, perfect for spring and finally back in print. The ideal motivator for green-fingered youngsters.

George, the little gardener, is surprised when one of his beloved flowers is sad. The small daisy would rather be in the neighbor’s beautiful garden filled with lilies and roses than in George’s untamed yard. But when George assists her, she finds that things are not always as they seem.

Bernadette Watts’s beautiful pastel illustrations bring magic to this heartwarming story by Gerda Marie Scheidl about the things that matter most.

Bernadette Watts, known throughout Europe simply as Bernadette, has illustrated many dozens of folk- and fairy tales. Born in England, she studied at the Maidstone Art School in Kent (UK) under the tutelage of Brian Wildsmith. Bernadette finds her inspiration in nature. She has been illustrating for NorthSouth Books since the beginning of her career fifty years ago.

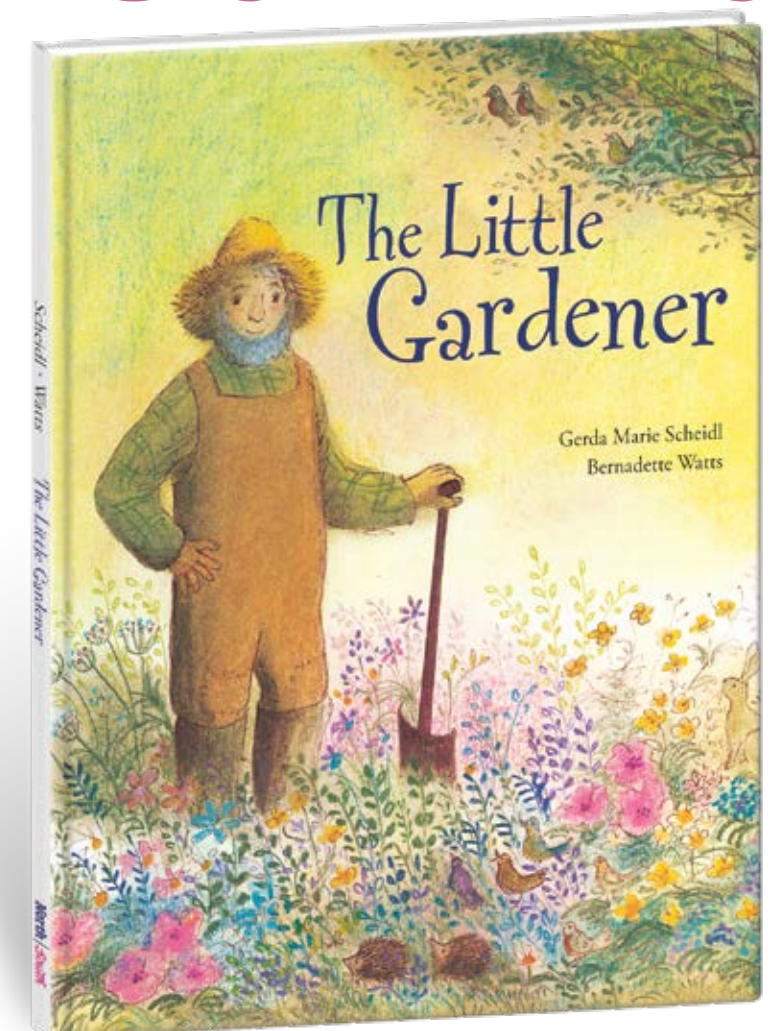

Gerda Marie Scheidl was born in 1913 in the north of Germany. She studied dance at the Hellerau-Laxenburg School on the outskirts of Vienna, then trained as an actor and had a three-year stint with the Dortmund opera. Gerda Maria Scheidl wrote both children’s books and plays. She also worked for radio and television as well as being in charge of a private children’s theater. She died in 2005.
